

KURRENT KOMMENT

GATHERED TOGETHER FOR FUTURE CAREFUL CONSIDERATION.

Opinions as to the Results of the Recent Total Wave and Cyclonic Disturbances - What Will the Harvest Be?

TARIFF PICTURES.

At the end of our last revenue Tariff period in 1860 the wool production of the United States amounted to 60,264,913

pounds. In 1867 it was 39,035,460

pounds. This rapid growth of the wool industry evidently dispossesses the Free-trader, and he proposes to stop it by making wool free.

- New York Press.

Some of the Indians in Oklahoma are engaging in the ghost dance and their squaws are starving. When starvation and the ghost dance get together among a lot of Indians it is time for our regular army to reach for its guns and get on a war footing as soon as possible.

When it was proposed to increase the duty on rice some years ago, a prominent Senator from South Carolina asserted from his seat that his people needed no protection on that article; it is now only a question of time when that grain will cease to be grown in his state under the Democratic party.

The Philadelphia Inquirer wants to know how much longer are we going to buy silver bullion at market rates, store it away in the Government vaults and hold it a loss? Why should the mine owners be permitted to dump their products before the Treasury doors and receive their cash for the output of their mines? If the Government must purchase bullion, why should it not purchase potatoes and flour and coal and other American products? The farmers and the manufacturers have as much right to sell their products to the Government as have the silver miners.

The Baltimore Sun calls attention to the large amount of foreign capital which has been withdrawn from this country "since the Sherman act was been in force." The verbal truth of the statement may not be disputed, but our Democratic contemporary evidently intends a partisan point. The question of maintaining or repealing the silver law is hardly a partisan one now, but were the Sun fair, it would have shown or endeavored to show, that the withdrawal of capital was the direct result of the silver act, and would not have ignored foreign capital which has come in while that was going out.

Senator John Sherman comes out plainly in favor of repealing the silver purchase clause of the act of 1890, and says: "The fact is that silver is going the way of the other metals, probably such as nickel and copper and iron. The method now used to cheapen the production of silver diminishes its value as a standard of coin, such as it held when it represented a large percentage of labor. I think we will not be able to sustain ourselves against the financial attitude of the commercial world, which is inclining toward the gold standard more and less. Europe is too closely connected with us to allow us to be above her opinion."

The Florida Tobacco Growers' Association was organized at Marianna, with delegates present from fifteen counties.

Resolutions were passed reciting that the tobacco industry in Florida is in its infancy and can be sustained only by maintaining the present duty on leaf tobacco and closing as follows:

That Sen. and Representatives in Congress are hereby earnestly requested to use their full influence to prevent any change in the duty as it now exists, and in the case of any change or modification in the said duty on leaf tobacco that the same should apply to manufactured cigars.

The association is made up largely of Democrats, and there was no opposition to the passage of the resolution.

Tax receipts of the Maysville Postoffice from sales of stamps for the quarter ending December 31st, 1891, were $3,888.45 - the largest of any quarter in the history of the office, and $88.97 in excess of the same period in 1891.

PUBLIC LEDGER

EXCITING AND INTERESTING WERE THE CONTESTS FOR SUPREMACY.

Some of the Old Officials Re-Elected and Some New Ones Chosen - Facts and Pictures Illustrative of the Day.

TOO GOOD FOR THIS EARTH.

She was a pretty maiden with the liveliest in her eye.

A New Year's gift for Algernon.

She started out to buy.

She went to the shop and

She went from shop to shop.

The worn and weary salesman there

She kept "upon the hop."

"Here is a small one that she has."

"She has a shopping credit."

"He doesn't use tobacco, sir."

"She scornfully replied.

"A dainty little brandy flask

"With a label with silver links."

"Oh, no, never drink."

"A neat and novel box for cards."

"A new and good cigar box."

"He's often told me so."

"A pair of opera-glasses, then,

"A novel pattern, quite."

"He never goes to the theater."

"Then loudly did the shopman cry,

"As she approached the door:

"Our harp and crown department, miss,

"Is on the upper floor."

The dispatch received lately from Rome, giving the views which Mgr. SATOLI was instructed, as papal delegate, to submit to the American archbishops as guides to their action in relation to Roman Catholic attendance at the public schools, is the fullest and clearest statement which has yet been made upon the subject. Making due allowance for expressions which seem strange to us, but are quite matter of course to Europeans, about "the ecclesiastical power and the civil power," and so forth, it is evident that the Pope only recognizes and approves, not only the right of the duty of parents to have their children educated, where the education is obtained in public schools or in so called parochial schools. That is, the ban which the Roman Church has so long maintained, or has been supposed to maintain, against the public schools, is removed, and so far from prohibiting Roman Catholic parents from sending their children to the schools supported by the state, the Pope virtually enjoins parents to send their children to such schools rather than have them go without an education equal to that which the public schools provide.

Now, we wish to ask any one to whom this copy of The Economist may come, why all England wishes to impede a further expansion of our competition with Welsh makers, if we pay the duty?

OUR Democratic contemporary which shuns for all displays surprising meekness in discussing Mr. CLEVELAND's attempt to take the election of the Senator from New York out of the hands of the Democratic party. In former days so gross a violation of precedent and political propriety on the part of Mr. CLEVELAND would have called forth from our contemporary a degree of censure which nothing but most unfeeling partisans in the English language could have expressed. Yet now his severest condemnation of the course of the President-elect is found in the intimation that he has been "ill-advised."
